

Learn Assiduously

One August day in 2014, while being shown around a breeding station, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un underlined the need to maintain a scientific approach to livestock farming.

He was very happy that an official of the station had an expert knowledge of the advanced technologies that had been introduced into its operation.

He said to the official: Your explanation is very logical. You said that you have learned a lot from the researchers of the Biological Engineering Branch under the State Academy of Sciences. Officials should learn assiduously to creditably perform their revolutionary duties entrusted to them by the Party.