

For the People's Benefits

One January day in 2015, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the newly-built Ryugyong Mushroom Farm.

After exchanging greetings with its officials, he feasted his eyes on the farm for a while and said it looked very wonderful.

Then he made the rounds of a control room, technical preparation room and other places and stressed time and again: The issue to be realized in mushroom cultivation in the future is to put production processes on a fully automated basis. Scientists and technicians should break through the cutting edge with an ambitious goal to beat the world in mushroom cultivation.

We should produce mushroom in large quantities, as President Kim Il Sung and Chairman Kim Jong Il taught us, so as to turn ours into a country famous for mushroom. Now that a mushroom farm has been built in Pyongyang, it is important to ensure that the citizens benefit from it.

With a view to providing the citizens with fresh vegetables and mushrooms on a normal basis all the year round, he had taken a measure to build a mushroom farm in Pyongyang as a national model.

That day, he earnestly asked its officials to produce lots of mushrooms and ensure that the citizens substantially benefit from it. And he specified the ways to this end.