

To Prove in Practice

One October day in 2015, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the Kim Jong Thae Electric Locomotive Complex to see a newly-made subway train.

He stated: The current success proved in practice once again that we can create a thing out of nothing if we rely on the brains of our scientists and technicians and give full play to the inexhaustible strength of the working class and their revolutionary spirit of self-reliance.

I attached great importance to developing and producing a subway train in order to teach those persons infected with proclivity to import, in practice, not in words, the truth that what is made with our own efforts and technology is more precious than anything, as the heroic working class of Kim Il Sung and Kim Jong Il and patriotic scientists and technicians did. The subway train associated with the fighting spirit of our working class gave me a great encouragement.
