

Special Guests Invited to Celebration Events

One June day in 2015, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited a scientific research base, as he was told that its officials and scientists had developed an agrochemical of our style and laid a firm foundation for industrializing its production on a normal footing.

That day, he showed the greatest loving care and trust to the scientists.

After learning about the research and production of its products, he said that he came there not merely to see its production technology or process but to meet the scientists, and listened to the story about the difficulties and agony a scientist had experienced in the course of realizing the industrial production.

The officials were deeply moved to tears while listening to his praise for the efforts of scientists who had devoted themselves to the work for agricultural development of the country.

Calling them patriotic scientists, Kim Jong Un invited them to the celebrations of the 70th anniversary of the founding of the Workers' Party of Korea as special guests.